Some information, is a bit more forbidden than others, and certain people started to take notice of his acquired information. The wrong people.

A curse was planted for Wynn to discover, and although he was able to hide his new necromancy powers for a few years, eventually he was found out. Being disowned and cast away, Wynn had no choice but to forge a life for himself. Luckily, his upbringing had perfected his charisma and manners, and he found family elsewhere.

A lovely old couple whose child had tragically past away in an accident. Wynn used his powers to allow the couple to see their child again, and seeing them cry with happiness, Wynn learnt that his powers do have a place in this world.

Currently, he runs 'Déjà Brew' Café, seeking to redeem himself through giving back to people. Providing excellent customer service is his aim by day, and by night he attempts to quell his powers and Necromancy tendencies.
